

Parent's Guide: How Do I Help My Middle School Child Prepare for a Test?

How can you use SchoolRooms to find information that supports parents and students with learning? Parents can use resources found in SchoolRooms to discover homework help, get information on family health and social issues, learn about testing in schools, and more!

How do I help my child prepare for a test?

The same process for searching for test preparation and studying resources will work with other school topics and many other homework needs.

You can find resources in several ways within SchoolRooms. Try searching for keywords such as test anxiety, test preparation, and study skills.

You can also find great information by browsing. Here is a list of topics with several Rooms that link to informative and reputable resources. Start with the Parent's Guide link on the left side of the screen, under the title "Explore a Room." For additional information, you can also browse within the Middle School Room found in this menu.

Parent's Guide

- Parent's Guide->Middle School->Testing & Achievement->Test Preparation
- Parent's Guide->Middle School->Helping My Child Learn->Getting The Most Out Of Homework
- Parent's Guide->Middle School->Helping My Child Learn->Organizing My Child

Middle School

- Middle School->Study & Research->Studying
- Middle School->Study & Research->Studying->Taking Tests